Hawaii, Australia On Dr. Malone's Agenda

Dr. Thomas F. Malone, Director of the Research Department at The Travelers, will give the opening address at the International Conference on Cloud Physics to be held in Canberra and Sydney, Australia, this month.

Dr. Malone will be attending the conference as president of the American Meteorological Society. He left Hartford on August 29, stopping off in Hawaii to attend the Pacific Science Congress as a representative of the American Geophysical Union of which he also is president.

Scheduled to open on September 11, the Australia conference is sponsored jointly by the Australian Academy of Science, the Commonwealth Scientific and Industrial Research Organization and the International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics. Scientists from many nations are expected to attend.

A special feature of the week-long conference will be an excursion to the Snowy Mountains

Veigas presented a paper on "The Prediction of Movement of Hurricanes" to the assembly. Mr. Veigas has been widely recognized for his work with Dr. R. G. Miller in the development of improved hurricane forecasting techniques.

WTIC Receives First U.S. Army Outstanding Public Service Award

Radio Station WTIC became the first Connecticut recipient of the United States Army Outstanding Public Service Award during a presentation ceremony held recently at the WTIC studios in Hartford.

In his presentation remarks, Col. John Lanterman, Commanding Officer of the NIKE Missile Group Headquarters in New Britain, cited WTIC for its unselfish action and consistent help in telling the story of the North American Air Defense Command and its mission to protect America from hostile air attack.
